◆ STABBING ON HALEY STREET

Athens police are investigating a stabbing on Haley Street Tuesday night. Police were called to 819 Haley Street where they found Michelle McDermott Wade laying in the front yard. She had several stab wounds to her chest, back, and legs. Some of the victim's friends were inside the house when Ms. Wade said she was going outside. Minutes later, they heard yelling and screaming. As they were going outside, they heard tires screeching and found Ms. Wade on the ground. She was airlifted to Erlanger Medical Center in serious condition. No arrests have been made.

◆ COMMUNITY NEWS YOU CAN USE:

✓ 1st Lt. Jamey Murphey will be presenting a Veterans Day program at the TWC convocation at 11 a.m. today, Thursday. As part of his presentation, he will bring a Humvee and possibly some other military vehicles to campus. They will be parked on College Street. The convocation is open to the public and will be at Townsend Auditorium.

NATIONAL & WORLD NEWS

◆ Joe Paterno, the Penn State football coach, whose legend was shattered by a child sex abuse scandal, was fired Wednesday night by the school's board of trustees. Paterno had offered to retire at season's end earlier in the day, saying he was "absolutely devastated" by the case, in which his onetime heir apparent, Jerry Sandusky, has been charged with molesting eight boys in 15 years. Penn State's President was also fired.

◆ A woman who settled a sexual harassment complaint against Republican presidential candidate Herman Cain in 1999 complained three years later at her next job about unfair treatment. She also accused a manager of circulating an e-mail with sexual overtones. Karen Krahsaar filed the complaint while working as a spokeswoman at the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in 2002 or 2003.

◆ Toyota is recalling more than 420,000 vehicles including Lexus, Highlander, Avalon, and Camry models to replace an engine component that could cause steering problems.

◆ Investors headed for the hills Wednesday over fears that Italy's economy is headed deeper into crisis mode. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 389.24 points, closing at 11,780.94.
