◆ McMinn Jail Has New Drug Drop Bin

The McMinn County Justice Center is one of 13 locations in Tennessee to have a permanent drug collection bin. (Shown in photo to right) Residents can take used or unwanted prescription medications to the Justice Center and drop the bottles into the box. The drugs will be removed daily and properly destroyed. The installation of the drug collection bin is a joint project involving the Tennessee Department of Environment, the McMinn County Sheriff's Office, the McMinn anti-Drug Coalition (MADCAT) and the McMinn County Health Council.

◆ COMMUNITY NEWS YOU CAN USE:

✓ Today is Flag Day. The Athens American Legion Post will celebrate Flag Day by demonstrating how to properly dispose tattered or damaged American flags. The program will take place at 5 p.m. today at the Legion Flag Memorial Park at exit 49 of Interstate 75. Anyone who has a worn or damaged flag is encouraged to bring it with them for proper disposal.

NATIONAL & WORLD NEWS

- ◆ Russia's foreign minister has defended his country's sale of arms to Syria and accused the U.S. of supplying rebels with weapons to fight against the government.
- ◆ Another alleged victim of former Penn State assistant football coach Jerry Sandusky says the coach pinned him down and performed a sex act on him, then told him he would never see his family again if he told anyone.
- ◆ The man accused of killing three football players near Auburn University last weekend has surrendered to authorities. Deamonte Leonard had been on the run since Saturday.
- ◆ Just days after New York City's mayor called for a ban on jumbo-sized sodas, city officials are now considering restrictions on the size of milkshakes and movie-theater popcorn containers.
- ◆ The Georgia Transportation Department has rejected a bid by a Ku Klux Klan group to join the state's highway cleanup program by adopting a section of highway. The Transportation Department says it decided to deny the KKK's application because the highway cleanup program is aimed at "civic-minded organizations in good standing." The agency says that would eliminate an organization with a history of inciting civil disturbance and social unrest.

10 COMMANDMENTS RETURNING

The Ten Commandments were removed from the Monroe County Courthouse seven years ago. But, they're about to return. A public ceremony will be held on June 21st to unveil a display that features several historical documents, including the Ten Commandments.

The display at the Monroe County Courthouse comes as a result of a bill introduced in the Tennessee Legislature this year by State Senator Mike Bell. The bill authorizes counties and cities to set up displays of historical documents, monuments, and writings that "commemorate freedom and the rich history of Tennessee and the United States." The display at the Monroe County Courthouse will include the Ten Commandments, the Mayflower Compact, the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, and the First Thanksgiving Day Proclamation.
