Local & State News

◆ ATHENS POLICE & FIRE ISSUE REPORTS

The Athens Police Department reports it investigated 90 thefts during the month of July, along with 21 burglaries, 20 assaults, 3 motor vehicle thefts, 2 robberies, and 1 sex offense. Police also wrote citations for 817 moving violations. There was a total of 65 traffic accidents with 21 injuries. The total number of injuries for the year from traffic accidents stands at 157.

The Athens Fire Department responded to 46 calls in July. Those calls included 12 false alarms, six vehicle accidents, six grass or trash fires, three vehicle fires, and one residential fire on Cleveland Ave. Athens firefighters also made a mutual aid response to a fire at Bowater. Losses for the month totaled $41,000.

◆ CALHOUN MAN DIES IN CAR CRASH

A 21-year-old man from Calhoun was killed in a Sunday morning car crash. State Trooper Travis Ryans says that Sergio Carrillo-Aguilera died when he lost control of his car around 4 a.m. Sunday on County Road 2. The vehicle rolled several times and Carrillo-Aguilera was ejected and died at the scene. Trooper Ryans says that if Carrillo-Aguilera had been wearing his safety belts, he most likely would have survived the wreck.

NATIONAL & WORLD NEWS

◆ The United Nations says more than 100,000 Syrians sought refugee status during August. The U.N. calls that an "astonishing number" of people fleeing to surrounding countries, in the face of escalating hostilities and violence in Syria.

◆ Hank Williams, Jr, whose "Monday Night Football" theme song was pulled by ESPN last year after he compared President Obama to Adolph Hitler, lashed out at the president during a Labor Day weekend concert in Texas. Williams told the crowd, "We've got a Muslim for a president who hates cowboys, hates cowgirls, hates fishing, hates farming, loves gays, and we hate him."

◆ The Secret Service says its code name for Mitt Romney is "Javelin." Paul Ryan is known as "bowhunter." Ryan, who is a skilled archer and deer hunter, chose the name himself. His wife, Janna, is "Buttercup."

◆ Then there's the case of the would-be carjackers in Knoxville. Police say two men approached a car early Monday morning, pulled a gun, made the driver get out, and then tried to drive off. Only problem was the car had a manual transmission and neither man knew how to drive a stick shift. Finally, in frustration, they got out and fled on foot. They were quickly caught by police.

Kitchen Fire In Cog Hill

Quick response from Task Force 3-4-11 (Englewood, Etowah and Claxton) resulted in a quick knock-down of a kitchen fire at the residence of Nancy Anderson on County Road 609 in the Cog Hill Community Tuesday morning. Actual fire damage was contained to one part of the kitchen. The fire started when a frying pan overheated and ignited. (Photos by Jay Thomson)
