NATIONAL & WORLD NEWS

◆ Republican Sen. John McCain believes that Chuck Hagel, the defense secretary nominee, is on the wrong side of history when it comes to Iraq. Hagel's comments about the troop surge in Iraq being the most dangerous foreign policy blunder since Vietnam was regarded as "bizarre" and "nonsense" by McCain who was a champion of the troop surge. The senator doubted whether he could support Hagel's confirmation. Other republicans believe Hagel would undermine America's national security ties to Israel and that he does not take the threat posed by Iran's nuclear program seriously enough.

◆ In a shooting outside an Atlanta middle school, one teenage student was shot and one was arrested. The student was alert, conscious, and breathing when he was taken to a local hospital.

◆ Snowmobiler Caleb Moore died from injuries he received during finals of the snowmobile freestyle at the Winter X Games in Aspen. Moore was 18.
