Local and State News

- ◆ ARMC & WOODS MEMORIAL CHANGE NAMES
Athens Regional Medical Center and Woods Memorial Hospital have formally changed their names effective Saturday, December 1, 2013. Both hospitals will now be known as Starr Regional Medical Center with an Athens and Etowah campus. Starr Regional is named for Starr Mountain which is well known here in Southeast Tennessee. In July 2012, both hospitals were placed underneath the Lifepoint Hospitals Corporate umbrella. Lifepoint is based in Brentwood, Tennessee and consists of 60 hospitals in the U.S.
- ◆ JIMMY LINER MEMORIAL CHRISTMAS PARADE
Tonight at 7 p.m. is when the Christmas Parade season begins with one of the largest to be held here in Athens. The parade will form at the Athens City Middle School and proceed down Madison Avenue to the downtown area and then return to the ACMS.
- ◆ COMMUNITY NEWS YOU CAN USE:
✓ The Optimist Club of Athens will have its annual Christmas Parade Soup Supper from 4:30 to 7 p.m. this evening at Mars Hill Presbyterian Church in the fellowship hall. Tickets are $5, and include soup or chili, a dessert, bread, and a drink. To-go orders and drive-thru service are available.

NATIONAL & WORLD NEWS

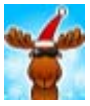

- ◆ A Metro North train bound for New York City derailed along the Hudson River early Sunday, killing four people and injuring 63. The train was en route to New York's Grand Central Station from Poughkeepsie, N.Y., when it derailed near a train station in the Bronx.
- ◆ Investigators are trying to determine the cause of a fiery crash that killed "Fast & Furious" star Paul Walker while the 40-year-old actor's fans erected a makeshift memorial near where the Porsche he was riding in smashed into a light pole and tree on Saturday.
- ◆ The worst of the online glitches, crashes and delays may be over for the problem-plagued Obamacare website. The Department of Health and Human Services says that about 50,000 people can now use the website simultaneously without it crashing.
- ◆ China launched its first ever extraterrestrial landing craft into orbit en route for the moon in the small hours of Monday, in a major milestone for its space program. The Chang'e-3 lunar probe, includes a "Moon Buggy" which will explore the moon's surface.
- ◆ The most incredible ending to a college football game occurred Saturday night when Auburn beat #1 and unbeaten Alabama with just one second left. Click HERE to watch the ending.

Re-Roofing The Courthouse

You've no doubt noticed the cranes and trucks around the McMinn County Courthouse and the men on the roof over the past few weeks. They are installing a new roof on the Courthouse, which included having to replace some of the plywood under the shingles.
