◆ TREE FALLS ON HOUSE AND CAR

Melissa Perez and her five children are temporarily living in a motel after a tree fell on their rental house in the 1900 block of Palos Street in Athens during a windstorm last Saturday night. Perez suffered bruises, but her children were not injured. The tree also smashed the car she had purchased just three months ago. She calls it a "minor setback." She says they may be spending Christmas in a hotel room, but they're alive and together and that's what matters.

NATIONAL-WORLD NEWS

◆ An Alabama second-grader didn't want her fellow classmates to go without a gift this holiday season, so she took it upon herself to give 430 students at Southview Primary School in Opelika, Alabama a gift. The gifts included a toy, pencils, candy and a holiday cup.

◆ COMMUNITY NEWS YOU CAN USE:

✓ Victims of the recent tornado in Athens can now apply for a variety of assistance from the Tornado Relief Center at the former American Bedding building on Dennis Street. The assistance includes help with home repairs, new appliances, and even assistance in paying medical bills.

✓ The Riceville Volunteer Fire Department will have Santa in the neighborhoods today starting at 5 p.m. Santa will return to the fire department around 7:30 p.m. for pictures and gifts.

✓ Allen Memorial United Methodist Church on Decatur Pike invites you to the Longest Night of the Year Service this Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. The service will offer comfort and encouragement to people who suffered losses from the tornado, or who have lost loved ones this year, or are fighting cancer and other diseases, or are going through a tough time.
